What are Phrasal Verbs?

Phrasal verbs are a combination of verbs and adverbs or verbs and prepositions. They are either transitive or intransitive. One of the foremost important and challenging characteristics of phrasal verbs is that the meaning of the mixture is usually quite different from the meaning of the first verb by itself.

For example :

The verb hang around , which suggests “to stay somewhere for a short time without doing much,” features a completely different meaning from the verb hang. Likewise, the verb pass out , which suggests “nodding off or becoming unconscious,” features a very different meaning from the verb pass. Finally, the verb put up with, which suggests “to tolerate” has little connection to the meaning of put.

The sentences below illustrate these differences.

Hang out vs. hang

- I and my friends usually hang out in this garden.
- The baby goes to hold the kitchen hanging on the wall.

Pass out vs. pass

- Stand here and do not let anyone pass out from this side.
- He was very upset as he did not pass the final exams.

Put up with vs. put

- You should stop doing this, we will not put up with bad behavior.
- Put the car within the garage.

Multiple meanings another challenging thing about phrasal verbs is that they often have quite one meaning.

Why phrasal verbs are important?

You are reading this because you want to sound like a native English speaker? Am I right?

If your answer is YES! Congratulations you have got the best e-book available in market for understanding and learning phrasal verbs.

Phrasal verbs play an important role as they're extremely common in informal English and unless you're conversant in their meanings, understanding informal language is going to be little difficult.

Hence, learning how to use phrasal verbs correctly will help you sound natural in casual English conversation and help you sound native English speaker.

Additionally, learning to use phrasal verbs correctly will assist you sound native English speaker in daily conversation.

Do not start with Grammar.

If your goal is to be really fluent in English, don't start with grammar. You must be amazed by reading this but yes that's true.

Let me explain, when you start learning a language, especially English with grammar, you are setting yourself up for failure. If you try to process all the grammar rules in your head and try to speak, you will not speak much!

English grammar has so many of inconsistencies in its rules.

Let's talk with example, the possessive of “ John ” is “ John's ” but the possessive of “ It ” is “ Its ” not “ It's ”, which is contraction of “ It is ”. You can't simply memorize and apply all the grammar rules in English.

I would suggest a better approach is to start speaking first and then improve grammar along the way. Think about it. This is the same way you learned your first language. Isn't it?
